BURTON WINS OUT IN SENATORIAL RACE IN OHIO

Taft, Foraker and Others Withdraw After Long Contest Is Waged.

IS GIVEN A CLEAR FIELD

Congressman From Cleveland Will Be Named by Acclamation for U. S. Senator.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 31.—All opposition to his nomination having disappeared during the past 24 hours, Representative Theodore Burton of Cleveland, will be named by acclamation for United States senator, succeeding Joseph B. Foraker at a Republican caucus called for Saturday afternoon. Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, brother of the President-elect, formally announced his withdrawal from the race today. All other candidates followed. Senator Foraker, learning that the delegation from his home country of Hamilton, pledged to Taft would be turned over to Burton, admitted for the first time that he would no longer hope for re-election. Within two hours all of the "favorite sons" and "dark horses" had ben swept out of the field and Mr. Burton was left supreme.

The caucus of Saturday, so far as it has to do with the nomination for senator, will be perfunctory. Mr. Burton's election will come on Tuesday, January 12. He will serve out his congressional term ending March 4.

[illegible] Fight.

The fight will be written down as one of the most interesting in the history of the state. It will mark the passing from public life of one of the most notable of the old leaders of the Senate Joseph Benson Foraker.

"I tender my most heartfelt thanks" [illegible] Senator Foraker, "to all my friends who have so loyally stood by me during this [illegible] contest. The recollection of their zeal and fidelity, while [illegible] have attended us, will always be cherished and appreciated."

There was talk that Charles P. Taft might again be a candidate in 1911 and would have the support of the united party if he so desired, but Mr. Taft declared he had no thought of what the future might hold for him and did not desire his friends to strive to make a bargain.

There were developments of interest. Former State Attorney General Wade H. Ellis, had returned from Augusta, Ga., where he went to consult President-elect Taft and brought a reply from the senatorial candidate's brother. Advices had been received at Augusta that President Roosevelt was alarmed lest the fight between Mr. Taft and Mr. Burton would give Senator Foraker a chance for re-election. In spite of this, however, it is said that President-elect Taft sent word that so long as his brother's friends believed he could win, he desired that they stand by him. He also would not have anything done that might injure the party in the state.

Burton called on Mr. Taft and the latter repaid the courtesy. Mr. Burton also called on Senator Foraker.

ELKS WILL ASSIST VICTIMS OF QUAKE

R. L. HOLLAND OFFERS AID TO RELIEF WORK.

Wires Roosevelt for Information as to Where Funds May Be [illegible]t.

The Elks will contribute toward the relief work now being carried on for the stricken portions of southern Italy and Sicily. Grand Exalted Ruler R. L. Holland, acting with promptness, yesterday dispatched the following telegram to President Roosevelt:

Theodore Roosevelt, President,
Executive Mansion,
Washington, D. C.

The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the United States is anxious to assist in the alleviation of suffering humanity in stricken Italy. The question is through what agency can contributions be made to insure speedy and proper applications to the alleviation of pain and suffering. The press dispatches received to date have failed to enlighten me on this matter, and therefore on behalf of the order, I appeal to you for information and guidance.

R. L. HOLLAND,
Grand Exalted Ruler.

"I do not know in just what way we can best aid the suffering people," said Mr. Holland last night [illegible] this reason, I have communicated with the President. As soon as I receive a reply to my telegram I shall authorize the proper authorities to draw upon me for funds.

"This is to be a contribution towards the general relief work which is being carried on. I have not as yet heard of any Elks being among the sufferers, although I suppose there are some. In case there are, they certainly will be taken care of by the or[illegible]

"HAPPY NEW YEAR"

RELIEF IS PROMPTLY SENT STRICKEN ITALY BY FRIENDLY NATIONS, BUT MORE IS NEEDED TO PREVENT STARVATION

Most Important of All Now Is the Question of the Living.

ROME, Dec. 31.—[illegible] of death roll of the earthquake now [illegible] to concern the Italian people. It is enough to know that the catastrophe is overwhelming, figures would add nothing to the grief of the stricken nation, nor move to greater efforts those upon whom the work of relief and rescue has fallen.

Every channel open to the government has been utilized to this end and other nations have been quick to come to its assistance even before the cry for aid went up. Shiploads of refugees have been carried out of the stricken zone to Naples, Palermo, Catalina and other ports, and according to the minister of marine, rescue vessels to the number of 36 are now centered in the Strait of Messina, and 5,000 soldiers are being landed on the two coasts.

Most important of all now is the question of the living. Thousands of those who escaped the falling walls and the sweep of the tide, are starving and without clothes or shelter. They cannot long survive their sufferings. The thought has been to carry food and covering for these helpless people, and it has been decided by the government to send a fleet of emigrant steamers to transport them to other places. The latest reports received at Rome state that there have been many intermittent shocks following the first, to which the greater part of the destruction is attributed. The British warship Minerva reported by wireless at Malta that two severe shocks occurred at Messina last night.

42 Distinct Shocks.

Professor Ricco, director of the observatory at Mount Etna, states that his instruments have recorded 42 distinct shocks after the first, but that during the last 14 hours they have been almost motionless.

Etna and Stromboli are now quiet, and he is certain that the earthquake was not of volcanic but geological origin, similar to [illegible]

Supplies Intended for the Jackies Will Be Sent to Messina.

NEW YORK, [illegible] 31.—[illegible] United States supply ship Celtic, which was to have met the returning battleship fleet with holiday cheer, sailed out of New York harbor this afternoon on an entirely different mission, but without changing a single item of her cargo. She will go direct to Messina to give a million and a half of navy rations to the earthquake sufferers.

The idea of changing the Celtic into a relief ship came to her commander, Harry McL. P. Huse, last night. It met with the immediate approval of Rear Admiral Caspar F. Goodrich, commandant of the navy yard, who promptly communicated with the department at Washington. Red tape was cut quickly in the interest of humanity; necessary preparations were hurried at the yard and the Celtic, with Christmas trees still lashed to the mastheads—it had been designed to make the Celtic the Christmas ship for the fleet—sailed. Her supplies will not be eaten by American sailors, but by suffering survivors of the Calabrian and Sicilian disaster.

Navy [illegible]able.

In the face of the overwhelming need of the Italians, the department is considering its own men second; how they will be provided with food is something that will be considered later. The navy department takes full responsibility for this sudden gift of supplies belonging to the United States government for the Italians, without warrant of law. It probably relies upon Congress to approve of its action, but the expectation is that Congress will be only too well pleased at this evidence of American pluck and "get there" qualities of the American navy.

Just as its ships were the first to reach Kingston, after the West Indian earthquake disaster, so the American naval flag on the Celtic may be the first to bring actual food supplies to Messina from any country, even though 3,000 miles away.

The ship has been dispatched to [illegible]

CRIPPLE CREEK STILL WORLD'S GREATEST GOLD CAMP

Record of Past Year Entitles District to Distinction so Long Enjoyed.

GROSS VALUE, $16,230,523

Total Output Reaches Enormous Sum of 770,978 Tons. Much Accomplished: More Planned.

Special to the Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Dec. 31.—The Cripple Creek Gold Mining district has maintained its reputation as the nation's greatest gold producer, with the output for 1908 of 770,978 tons of the gross bullion value of $16,230,525.

Of this enormous tonnage approximately two-thirds or 503,010 tons of the gold value of $12,587,490 has been received and treated at the mills of the Golden Cycle Mining company, the Portland Gold Mining company and United States Reduction and Refining company at Colorado City.

The smelters at Denver and Pueblo treated 48,172 tons of the bullion value of $2,191,745 and the local cyanide mills were responsible for the reduction of 179,796 tons of the low average value of $4.18 per ton. The bullion values of this ore amounting to $739,251.

Including the smelting and milling [illegible] general average of all ore mined and marketed was $21.[illegible] average value of the [illegible] ing [illegible] $[illegible].964 per ton.

Great [illegible] close corporations—were known to have declared and paid dividends, but their distributions are not a matter of record. Stratton's Cripple Creek Mining and Development company declared a dividend of $50,000 and this sum was doubtless placed to the credit of the Stratton estate.

The profits of lessees as carefully estimated from the data furnished The Gazette's special representative approximates $[illegible]. This sum includes the dividends of the leasing corporations, as well as the divided profits of lease partnerships and individual operators.

"[illegible] an emergency like This," He [illegible] "He [illegible] who Gives [illegible]ly."

DENVER, Dec. 31.—Governor Henry A. The governor reminds the people that "in an emergency like this he gives twice who gives quickly."

The address follows:

To the People of Colorado:

[illegible]tioned in Calabria as having been [illegible]pletely ruined This would indi[illegible] that the earthquake did not con[illegible] its work of havoc to the coast. [illegible]at has become of the inhabitants [illegible]hese villages is not known Those [illegible] were left alive after the destruc[illegible] of their homes doubtless joined [illegible] great army of refugees seeking [illegible]is, or have fallen by the wayside [illegible]he Calabrian coast for 40 miles has [illegible] torn and twisted From Bagnara [illegible] Reggio, a distance of 25 miles, the [illegible]ntry is half demolished, Assistance [illegible] reached but few of the villages, [illegible] they are practically without sup[illegible]s of any kind At Bagnara, sur[illegible] operations are being performed [illegible] pruning knives but at Reggio [illegible] that is impossible Thieves infest [illegible] country and the despair of the [illegible]ided villages is complete Hunger [illegible]plies the motives of scenes of shock[illegible] violence and robbers defy the few [illegible] living policemen and soldiers.

[illegible] commander of the Russian [illegible]ser, Admiral Makharoff, which ar[illegible] at Naples yesterday with refugees [illegible]m Messina, says of the earthquake [illegible] Hearing of the disaster I hurried [illegible] Messina The city was literally [illegible]hing but a heap of ruins Every [illegible]ding there has collapsed but in [illegible] cases the outward shells remain [illegible]ding, and as a result the general [illegible]our of the city is less changed [illegible] might be expected This is par[illegible]larly true of the sea front In [illegible]s of what has been said, the form [illegible]he strait of Messina shows little, if [illegible] change

The harbor is filled with refuse of [illegible]y kind and at one end lies the [illegible]ck of a sunken steamer.

Rescue Work Dangerous.

[illegible]t is impossible to give even a faint [illegible] of the desolation of the scene [illegible]ry now and then we heard the [illegible]h of falling doors and walls This [illegible]stitutes the greatest danger to the [illegible]uers It is not safe to approach [illegible] standing masonry Men from my [illegible]p had many narrow escapes and [illegible] several terrible accidents to [illegible] Italian soldiers who were doing [illegible] than their duty

We lost no time in setting about [illegible] work of rescue We established [illegible] open-air hospital on the shore [illegible] we received and treated a thou[illegible] people, men, women and children. [illegible] saved the safe of the bank [illegible] Sicily with its treasure

[illegible] estimate the deaths at Messina [illegible]0,000 The mind shrinks from [illegible]plation of the present condi[illegible] in the stricken city; that there [illegible] thousands of persons still alive in [illegible], and that countless numbers [illegible] are.

The tidal wave lasted much longer [illegible] the earthquake. During all the [illegible] we were in the harbor of Mes[illegible] our vessel shivered intermittently [illegible]hough shaken by some huge ma[illegible] monster.

[illegible]thetic Stories Without Number.

[illegible] could relate pathetic stories with[illegible] number Under some wreckage [illegible]sed in a kind of little cubbyhole [illegible] protected by two heavy beams [illegible]overed two tiny babies, safe and un[illegible]red They were comfortable as [illegible]ble and laughing and playing with [illegible] buttons on their clothes We found [illegible]ace of their parents, who undoubt[illegible] lost their lives

[illegible] made a terrible impression o[illegible] the bereaved children Many of [illegible] little ones live while their parents [illegible] dead We saw many mothers with [illegible] babies in their arms It was also [illegible]scribably painful to see the many [illegible] had gone crazy from grief They [illegible]hed and searched aimlessly for [illegible] loved ones keeping up the quest [illegible] after they had been brought on [illegible] our ship

[illegible]e foreign office has completed [illegible] arrangements for Lloyd C Gris[illegible] the American ambassador to leave [illegible]es tomorrow on board an Italian [illegible]ner for Messina Mr Griscom's [illegible]sion is to gather information re[illegible]ding the fate of the Americans who [illegible] supposed to have been in Calabria [illegible] Sicily at the time of the disaster [illegible] ambassador will take with him [illegible]al consular officers, among whom [illegible]ill divide the work As soon as [illegible] service of investigation is started [illegible] ambassador will return to Rome [illegible]yard Cutting, Jr American vice-[illegible]sul at Milan, will take charge of the [illegible]sular service at Messina. Winthrop [illegible]dler of Philadelphia will accom[illegible] the ambassador to the south

[illegible] numbers of telegrams addressed [illegible]eople in Messina, have been for[illegible]ed from here by mail because of [illegible] of wire facilities. There is prac[illegible]y no chance of these messages be[illegible] delivered

Death Roll Growing.

[illegible]ere are still numerous small vil[illegible] in Calabria from which no news [illegible] been received Many of them are [illegible]essible, and it is feared that when [illegible]eports do come they will only swell [illegible]atalities. Every fresh dispatch re[illegible]d is monotonous in its recital of [illegible] and desolation. The same heart[illegible]ing story doubtless will come from [illegible]ically every village and hamlet in [illegible] doomed area. It has been learned [illegible] the Culeine monks at Reggio es[illegible] and did brave work in rescuing [illegible]ess fortunate Of the 21 nuns at [illegible] convent of San Vincenzo Di Paolo [illegible] seven remain alive They are now [illegible]ged in nursing the wounded A [illegible] observer of the destruction of [illegible]ina says there were four tidal [illegible]s ranging 12 to 30 feet high. Thir[illegible] minutes elapsed between the rolling [illegible] the first and the destructive on[illegible]ht of the last wave

[illegible] weather in Calabria continues [illegible]inable. Heavy rains are falling [illegible] at night the thermometer goes be[illegible] freezing.

[illegible] has been impossible to ascertain [illegible]her there were any Americans at [illegible]otels in Messina The hotel France [illegible]psed at the first shock and [illegible] [illegible]s were killed It is asserted that [illegible] of these were Americans Only [illegible] waiters escaped as they were al[illegible] up and had the presence of mind [illegible]ek shelter from the falling walls [illegible] the staircase of the hotel.

[illegible] Continental hotel was destroyed, [illegible] no Americans were stop[illegible] there Almost all the guests at [illegible] Hotel Trinacria including [illegible] [illegible]ens the Swedish consul, are dead [illegible]ing has been learned definitely as [illegible] number of Americans in that ho-tel which was the leading one of the city

Many Messages of Inquiry

The American embassy here is in receipt of a great number of messages of inquiry from the United States, seeking information concerning Americans believed to have been in the earthquake zone but it has been found impossible to obtain any information Even though they had escaped American visitors in that section of Italy would find it impossible to communicate by telegraph with their friends on account of interruptions to the telegraph lines

Official reports from Reggio state that the general storage magazines have been commandered and are guarded to prevent looting Provisions are being distributed Two bakeries which have been re-opened at that place are also guarded by soldiers. All the cattle within reach have been requisitioned The sea is throwing up bodies along the shore and in some places they obstruct the railroad track along the coast

A tragic episode at Reggio was the rescue of Deputy Dementrio Tripepi, mayor of the town His family had escaped but he disappeared and his children felt certain that he was buried under the ruins They set to work to find their father, and they struggled with the ruins for 24 hours without rest and without food Only a miracle they thought, could bring him back to them Eventually, however, the father appeared although badly injured The joy of the family was not for long for the deputy died soon afterward Guisseppe Valenti, another member of the chamber of deputies also is among the dead.

Pope Sends $20,000

The pope has sent to the bishops in the earthquake zone $20,000. He is also sending special envoys to report the most urgent needs The pope has suspended all audiences and solemn mass will be said for the repose of the souls at the expense of the pope

In view of the impossibility of properly housing and feeding the tens of thousands who have survived the disaster, the authorities have agreed that the only course is to transport them as quickly as possible out of the stricken community. Accordingly it has been arranged that all Italian emigrant steamers shall go to Messina and various other ports for the purpose of taking off the refugees and distributing them to the different cities of Italy

King Victor Emmanuel today visited all the wrecked villages along the Sicilian coast, everywhere meeting the same [illegible] visit hamlets in Calabria.

"People from Messina state that what is most needed now is water, bread and light The streets at night are in absolute darkness and this is taken advantage of by thieves and murderers.

THOUSANDS RAISED BY AMERICAN CITIES

New York and Chicago Lead in Subscriptions to Funds for Relief of Italians

NEW YORK Dec 31—Nearly $100 000 was subscribed today to the various funds being raised in New York for the relief of the sufferers of the Messina and Calabria earthquake

Of this the United States Steel corporation contributed $25 000 and the Standard Oil company $10 000 The New York stock exchange although its fund is only a few hours old added $21 000 The list opened at the city hall by Mayor McClellan contributions ranged from $5 000 by Mrs Russell Sage to one dollar tendered by the little Italian bootblack who monopolizes the work of polishing the shoes of the mayor and the aldermen

With the closing of the list for the day a total of $9 805 had been recorded

The total remittances through the New York state branch of the Red Cross for the day were not made public only those contributions in excess of fifty dollars being announced These however exceeded $20 000

At the Italian chamber of Commerce $8 000 was collected This sum was immediately cabled to the Italian Red Cross society at Rome

Archbishop Farley has given $2 000

CHICAGO Dec 31—Chicago's contribution to the earthquake relief fund tonight aggregated $30 000 Of this amount $12 000 was collected today Mayor Busse has issued a proclamation asking prompt contributions Emery S Walker, an attorney, tonight telegraphed to Herbert E Law at San Francisco requesting him to report on the status of the fund of $297,267 which was left over from the San Francisco earthquake relief fund, asking whether it would not be proper to use that fund in behalf of the Italian sufferers

Mr Walker is expected to report on the matter at a mass meeting of business men to be held here Saturday

LONDON, Dec 31—King Edward has contributed $2,500 and Queen Alexandra and the Prince of Wales each $1,250 for the earthquake sufferers

The lord mayor's fund now totals $75,000 raised almost entirely through the contributions of business houses. Sir Ernest Cassell has contributed $5,[illegible], Brown, Shipley & Co, $2,625, and the Bank of England $2 500 Special collections taken up on the stock exchange and many public bodies will greatly increase the fund

WORLD'S GOLD OUTPUT LARGER THAN LAST YEAR

WASHINGTON Dec 31—The World's total output of gold in 1908 was $427,000 000 against $410 [illegible] 000 in 190[illegible] according to today's preliminary estimate of Director of the Mint Leech Gold production in the United States aggregated $96,313 256—an increase of almost $6,000 000 Silver aggregated $[illegible] fine ounces a net decrease of 4 700,000 ounces from the previous year. Africa yielded $16 [illegible]0,000 in gold—an increase of over $1,[illegible] 000 Alaska California Colorado and South Dakota showed increases in gold reaching altogether over $10,500 000 Decreases in Utah of 3,500,000 ounces Colorado of 1,250 000 and Idaho of [illegible] 500,000 were notable in the silver output

The injunctions against smelters on account of the objectionable fumes caused quite a shrinkage in the output of both gold and silver in Utah and the labor troubles early in the year had a similar effect on the yield in Nevada The shrinkage in these states with the losses in some of the less important producing sections, cut down the increase for the United States to about $6,000 000

DISTRICT BREAKS RECORD LAST MONTH OF OLD YEAR

CRIPPLE CREEK Dec 31—With the heaviest output and largest gross bullion value for the entire year, the mills and smelters of this district made up today with a gross tonnage of 68 000 tons and a total bullion value of $1 360,000 practically $1,500 000 This increase is not due to a larger output of the mines or a higher grade of ore but is accounted for by the fact that the mines always save a large amount of high grade ore for the December output every year The exact figures are as follows

PARENTS OF HAINS ON WITNESS STAND

AGED COUPLE HELPS CASE OF ACCUSED.

Belief Is Expressed That Shooting Was Result of Unsound Mind, Caused by Wife's Conduct.

FLUSHING N Y Dec 31—General Peter C Hains U S A and his wife Mrs Virginia P Hains parents of Thornton J Hains now on trial as a principal in the slaying of William E Annis were witnesses in their son's behalf today and their testimony brought out in full detail the relationship of Mrs Claudia Hains and William E Annis that caused the estrangement of Captain Hains and his wife

General Hains declared that in his presence and before his two sons Peter and Thornton Hains the captain's wife, Claudia Hains made a full confession of her misconduct and that subsequently Captain Hains manifested such poignant grief from the disclosures that his mental condition became affected The confession which General Hains declared his son's wife Claudia, had signed on the day following Captain Hains return from the west was read to the jury General Hains made a strong witness for his son, and counsel for the defense asserted tonight that the evidence was now conclusive that Captain Hains was mentally unbalanced when he shot William Annis and that his act was one of his sole doing The general will be under cross examination again Monday Though Mrs. General Hains who wept many times during her story, the defense drew out facts that Hains in his early life evidenced physical weaknesses, which counsel will endeavor to prove through two of three experts, were a predisposing cause to insanity General Hains was permitted to say that his father died from insanity Justice Crane directed District Attorney Darrin whose term of office expires tonight, to continue as the prosecutor in the case

The direct testimony of General Hains was in no wise shaken by the long cross examination Justice Crane held that the general had only been permitted on his direct examination to state exactly what he had told the captain and what the captain had told him General Hains said that he never heard his son Thornton, express any animus to William E Annis

WAR ON LATE DINNERS.

From the New York Press

Late dinners at Montclair N J are interfering with the churchgoing of many Scandinavian girls employed as servants in the homes of the wealthy and the well to do and the Rev John Anderson, pastor of a local congregation has made a protest in behalf of the girls. Among housewives who make even a pretense of conforming with fashionable usages in relation to the dinner hour, the one great question now is whether to sacrifice their fashionableness for the sake of the spiritual welfare of the Scandinavian girls, or rather to compel the girls to sacrifice their religious devotions at the altar of fashion.

PARENTS SUICIDE AFTER DEATH OF ONLY CHILD

Professor Gordy of New York University, and Wife, Swallow Chloroform.

NEW YORK, Dec 31—Unable to endure the thought of spending their declining years without the cheering presence of their daughter Professor J P Gordy of New York university and his wife committed suicide a few hours after the death of their girl 18 years of age After giving way to their grief the parents appeared more resigned and the physicians and nurses left

The two then retired to their apartments and getting into bed swallowed the contents of three bottles of chloroform. Two hours later Professor James E Lough of New York university, who occupied apartments adjoining those of Professor Gordy traced the odor of chloroform to his friend's room He summoned Dr Van Santvoord the Gordy family physician and the two broke in the door They found the couple clasped in each other's arms and both dead Professor Gordy was a recognized authority on political history.

PRESBYTERIAN WOMEN MAY BECOME ELDERS IN CHURCH

DENVER Dec, 31—Abrogating several ancient rules and customs of the United Presbyterian church the Presbytery of Colorado in session at the First Presbyterian church today voted unanimously that women shall be eligible to the ranks of elders and ordained ministers and that the terms for which elders shall be elected in the future shall be optional with the several congregations

Heretofore the book of government and providing that the election of eld clauses prohibiting the ordaining of women as either ministers or elders and providing that the election of elders should be for life or during good behavior

The action of the Colorado Presbytery follows exactly the steps taken by other Presbyterians throughout the United States and undoubtedly means that these changes [illegible] buildings have been prepared and accepted by the company's board of management.

The Wishbone mill, on Tenderfoot, of 100 tons capacity, is also to shortly commence operations, and railroad connections have already been arranged for. This mill will make possible the development of properties on Tenderfoot, Carbonate, and Mineral hills, Rhyolite and Copper mountains, known to carry bodies of low grade ore adaptable to the milling process, but of too low a grade to permit of shipment to the valley plants. It is also reported that an overhead, or aerial tramway, to the Little Giant mill, west of Cripple Creek, will be constructed, and that the owning company will enter the market for low grades.

Experiment Plant Success.

In this connection it may be stated that the experimental plant erected by the Portland Gold Mining company, for test runs on its dump ores, has been running steadily for the past two weeks and while no cleanup has yet been made the "heads" are said to assay up to expectations. With this plant a success, there is every reason to anticipate a mill of the same description and process in operation at every mine dump of sufficient tonnage in the district.

During the past year the movement of dump ore was without precedent, the low freight and treatment rate of $4.50 a ton making the shipment of ore of as low value as $6 a ton profitable. At the present writing a petition is in circulation in mining circles for the necessary indorsements, to aid in a combined effort to reduce freight rates on these low-grade ores. Should such reduction be made the tonnage moved to the valley plants during 1909 will bring the total up to and beyond the 1,000,000 ton mark.

Discoveries of 1908.

To attempt to describe the numerous strikes and discoveries of 1908 will not be attempted here. Suffice therefore to say that every hill within the recognized producing area was well represented and that the more important discoveries were made in the deepest workings of the deepest mines.

This brief review will conclude with the most important of all developments of the present, and future years to come, the Roosevelt Deep Drainage tunnel.

The bore has been driven to date one mile. Three headings are piercing the granite, and the eruptive area grows nearer with every round of shots. Picked men, under skilled and experienced superintendents and shift bosses, are at work day and night and supervising it all is that man of nerve, A. E. Carlton, the contractor, and one of the district's most energetic and progressive citizens.

As previously stated the bore has been driven in excess of one-third of the required distance where relief may be anticipated. The new year will see the great engineering feat, that means so much to the district, nearing completion, and under favorable conditions the main water course of Beacon hill will be tapped before its close. Its importance cannot be over-estimated. The life of Cripple Creek will be prolonged indefinitely. The gold to be recovered none may know.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—Speyer & Co. announced that in view of the large advance sale of the $30,000,000 of five per cent bonds of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad company, no more private sales will be made, but the bonds will be offered for public subscription. The allotment will be made on January 3.

ESSICK FAMILY UNDER SURVEILLANCE OF POLICE

No deposit of this sum at any bank was made by Essick, so far as was learned, and the money was in his room the night of the murder, according to the best evidence obtainable.

Although no trace has been found of the money belonging to the Woodmen, $50 belonging to Mrs. Essick was found intact in the dead man's room. Treasurer Aldrich of the Woodmen says that Essick handled from $2,500 to $3,000 per month for the order.

Was Dead When Shot.

Coroner Law yesterday filed a certificate with the health department, stating Essick to be the victim of a homicide, and that death was due to a stab wound in the left ventricle of the heart. No mention of the gunshot wound in the head was made, for the reason that life was extinct when the shot was fired. This is proven conclusively, as stated in The Gazette yesterday, by the fact that no bleeding followed the course of the bullet, showing that the heart had stopped beating. A wound such as this would produce a copious hemorrhage in the head, if a spark of life were left.

County Physician H. L. Richardson last night not only reiterated his theory and that of the other officials that murder has been committed, but said that in his opinion the coroner's jury tomorrow morning will certainly return a verdict to that effect. He said:

"I don't see how the jury can return any other verdict than that of murder, even though it may not be able to fix the crime on any specific person or persons."

Scalp Broken by Gun.

Dr. Richardson denied a report in a local paper yesterday afternoon, quoting him as saying that Essick's skull had been cracked around the gunshot wound. He said that the scalp, or skin, was broken, as announced in The Gazette Wednesday morning.

The funeral was held from the undertaking rooms of Fairley and Law yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Woodmen of the World. The funeral was private, and was attended only by members of the Woodmen, G. A. R. and the family. Interment was in Evergreen cemetery.

NEW YEAR WILL BE BUSY ONE FOR ASTRONOMER

the world may expect to see some brilliant displays of shooting stars. It is said that there are 300,000,000 meteors hurled in our direction every year, and that if it were not for the atmospheric cushion which destroys them by the development of fervent frictional heat, not one of us could escape this great celestial bombardment. In the New York Museum of Natural History there is a meteor which "penetrated the earth's armor," as it were, and fell in Greenland. It weighs nearly 40 tons.

The rings of Saturn begin to grow wider this year, and will continue to expand until 1915, when contraction will again set in. For years it was thought that these rings were clouds of vapor around the planet, but recent spectroscopic tests show that they are made up of minute particles traveling on their own orbits. As stated before, there will be few sun spots to be watched, as this is an off season for them.

One of the most interesting undertakings in the astronomical world today is the studies being made by the astrophysical observatory of the Smithsonian Institution toward solving the questions of the the sun's heat. All life, all being, depends upon the sun. Decrease its temperature a few degrees and the world would become enshrouded in darkness. A thousand interesting and valuable things depend on what can be learned about the sun's heat. At the observatory they have made all sorts of traps to catch sunbeams, and once caught they can never escape until they have added their mite to the sum of human knowledge about the great source of our light and life.

Sensitive Instrument.

An instrument has been devised which tells the difference of temperature up to a hundred-millionth of a degree, a million times more sensitive that the most delicate thermometer in general use. It has been found that the sun is a very hot place. It gives off heat enough to develop one horsepower for every four square feet of surface under ideal conditions and six and a half square feet under average conditions with the sun at meridian. A city lot of average size would give enough power to run a hundred horsepower plant. The solution of the question of utilizing solar energy involves only the devising of a method of storing it when the sun is high and bright for times when it is low or clouded.

Finite mind cannot well comprehend the tremendous heating power of the sun. It is said that if all the coal in the state of Pennsylvania were to be burned in a single second, the heat would not be equivalent to that given off by the sun in the same time. Each square foot of the sun's surface—and its diameter is [illegible] 000 miles—gives off 110,000 calories of heat per minute, enough to develop 10,000 horsepower. It is generally conceded that the heat of the sun is caused by contraction. Inch by inch the great luminary is falling into itself, falling so slow, however, 440 miles. So eminent an authority as Professor Newcomb assures us that it will be at least a million years before it shrinks far enough to injure the human race.

Sun Unimportant.

Yet with all its heat and brightness, with all its bigness by comparison with our little globe, and all its greatness to us, the sun is only an unimportant member of the universe. The star, Arcturus, is said to 5,000 times as bright, and Algol gives 65 times as much light. To the question of the little child saying its "Twinkle, twinkle, little star, how I wonder what you are," science has answered that it is a sun like our own. In fact, the sun we see is rated by astronomy as but a star of the fifth magnitude. But even though it is an unimportant star from the universe standpoint, it will still be studied above every other thing in the heavens, on account of the many wonderful secrets it holds.

The Carnegie Institution has set up the largest telescope in the world on Mount Wilson, California, which is a mile above sea level. Here they expect to delve into the mysteries of space on a scale hitherto unapproached. One thing they will do is to study the sun from the standpoint of a star. Another will be to learn something new about the stars themselves. Each discovery teaches some new lesson, and makes the next one plainer than the one before. Every proposition in astronomy is proved with great conclusiveness before it gets general acceptation. As the spider spins his web about the fly and securely holds him, astronomy weaves its web of hypotheses around the secrets of the universe and makes them its own.

Distance of Sun From Earth.

A single illustration will suffice. In determining the distance of the sun they calculated it on the basis of the mass of the earth and got approximately 93,000,000 miles. Then, they worked it out by the parallax method, entirely different in every particular and got practically the same result. Then they approached the solution through the velocity of light—and the result was the same. At last they figured it out from known facts about the motion of the moon—with again the same result.

Previous discoveries, reached through the same painstaking and proof positive methods had made these operations possible. For instance, it was considered up to 1617 that light flashed instantaneously. Then Romer figured that the reason the eclipses of Jupiter's moons did not take place at the exact moment anticipated was because Jupiter was farther away from the earth at some times than at others, and that the light did not get here as promptly when it had to travel so far. This was the beginning of investigations which show the velocity of light to be 186,000 miles a second.

To show how astronomers tax the very limit of human ingenuity to study the heavens, the little instrument made for measuring star heat at the Mt. Wilson observatory serves admirably. First, there is a plane mirror, which throws the beams of a star onto a concave mirror. This, in turn, concentrates the beam onto a platinum thread smaller than the filament a spider spins, through which a current of electricity is kept passing. The heat which this star beam communicates to the platinum thread is communicated to a little instrument which is made as follows: A little beam or balance made of a thread of spun glass, five inches long and smaller than a human hair, is fastened to a support by suspending it on a thread of spun quartz crystal two feet long and a five-thousandth of an inch in diameter. In the exact middle of the beam is fastened a mirror as small as a pin head, yet made so perfect that every point of the mirror side will touch when placed on a six-foot globe. This mirror is attached to the beam by pasting it to a little square cut from the wing of a dragon fly, and that in turn to the beam. The mirror weighs no more than a fly's hind leg. The heat of Arcturus, perhaps the hottest sun in the universe, is said to amount to only as much as the heat of a candle five miles away.

Movement of Solar System.

The whole solar system is said to be going toward the constellation Lyra at the rate of a million miles a day. One who has walked through a forest and has seen the trees gradually close in behind and open up in front has a good idea of the phenomenon the astronomers see. The southern heavens are gradually closing in and those of the north are opening up. The distances of the universe are such as to be inconceivable. Neptune is the outermost object of the solar system, swinging around its tremendous cycle nearly three billion miles away from the sun; yet the nearest fixed star is sixteen times further away from the sun than is Neptune. Though light travels at a rate that would send it around the earth seven and a half times in a single second, it would take it 2,300 years to come to us from the farthest known star. If there could be an eye on some of the most distant stars which could defy space it would now be beholding the Israelites in Canaan. Who has not seen the Pole star? Were there an eye upon it which could see the things on earth, that eye would now be looking at the great drama of the Civil war.

SUPPLIES INTENDED FOR JACKIES GO TO MESSINA

in record time, in less than 18 hours after her captain conceived his humane idea.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—The great American battleship fleet, built for purposes of destruction may after all have to go down in history as one of the greatest humanitarian agents in modern times. Not content with the outpourings of private charity, it is probable that the American government will direct this great fleet away from its own maritime progress towards home, to the stricken city of Messina and the other Italian ports where devastation beyond the unaided efforts of the Italian people themselves to repair has been wrought by earthquake and tidal wave.

A memorandum showing the location and proposed disposition of the Atlantic fleet is now before the state department for use when the decision is announced to offer the Italian government the assistance of these vessels and their crews in caring for the sick and wounded. For the time being the matter has not been taken up with the Italian government.

President Roosevelt has for himself and the American people expressed his sympathy for the people of Italy in the dire calamity which has befallen them and this government is anxious to do anything it can to relieve distress and succor the helpless. The navy department has asked the commanding officer of the Culgoa as to the condition of his stores, but after careful examination the officials are inclined to think there are no more aboard than are necessary to supply the larders of the 16 battleships.

Congress May Act Soon.

Congress will be again in session on Monday and if there should exist any doubt at the state and navy departments as to their authority to utilize any of the stores on board the battleships or the supply vessels for relief purposes, this can be at once cleared by a joint resolution directing such use. It is not for a moment doubted that provisions will be given to the immediate passage of such a measure.

Baron Des Planches, the Italian ambassador, called on Secretary Root and Assistant Secretary Bacon today and expressed the gratitude of his government and people over the sympathy of the United States with Italy in her misfortune. The baron is profoundly gratified at the many touching evidences of regard and for the [illegible] rendered through the American Red Cross.

The Scorpion, which is ordered to [illegible] for all service [illegible] will be [illegible] larly valuable, perhaps, to the American diplomatic and consular [illegible] who may feel the [illegible] her in going from place to [illegible] in the stricken district and in [illegible] any American tourists who may have been injured or have lost everything from the earthquake. Aside from this, it is also desirable that the American flag should be represented in Italian waters during these times.

Active work on the part of the American Red Cross characterized [illegible] day. Approximately $100,000 already has been made available by it from previous funds, or has been provided, much of which already has been cabled to the American embassy at Rome to be turned over to the Italian Red Cross society. That society, the Italian embassy at Washington reports, is the organization through which all relief will be administered. Among the contributions is one of $25,000 from the Anheuser-Busch Brewing association of St. Louis. The governors of Illinois, Mississippi, New York, Virginia, New Hampshire and California have issued appeals for contributions. [illegible] Roosevelt will personally subscribe [illegible] toward the relief fund.

Tent Cottage Sanatorium

105 CHEYENNE ROAD

This is an ideal Sanatorium for the treatment of tuberculosis. These tent cottages are designed for light housekeeping. They have three rooms, all exposed to the sun both in the forenoon and afternoon; the rooms are large and well ventilated, without exposing the patient to a draft; there is water in the kitchen, electric lights and toilet. In fact, there is everything that one needs in the home except the bath. The treatment that is used in this Sanitarium has been very successful in arresting the disease and in bringing about a healing of the diseased areas in the lungs. All those who are interested in tuberculosis are cordially invited to visit this Sanitarium and mingle with, and talk with, the patients who are under treatment.

PRESIDENT SHOULD GET MORE MONEY

BILL TO INCREASE SALARY WON'T BE REACHED.

Taft Will Find It Necessary, in All Likelihood, to Worry Along on $50,000 a Year.

By Sheldon S. Cline.

Special to The Gazette.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—There is little likelihood that Senator Bourne's bill to increase the salary of the President of the United States to $100,000 a year will be passed at this session of Congress, and if it is not passed before President-elect Taft takes the oath of office it cannot be passed to become operative during his tenure. The constitution provides that the salary of the President shall neither be increased nor diminished during his term of office.

Failure to pass the bill this winter, if it does fail, will not be because of the lack of earnestness on the part of the Oregon senator, nor does the bill meet with the disapproval of the President himself. It might be explained that the Bourne measure, though admittedly meretorious, had been introduced at an inopportune time, because, to quote Chairman Tawney, of the House committee on appropriations, "this is to be a Congress noteworthy for its economy." Then, too, there is a fat rivers and harbors appropriation in prospect; the demands of the waterways people for a fifty-million dollar appropriation have become so insistent they can hardly be ignored, and Congress feels the need of appropriations for public buildings in various sections of the the country, all of which will take a considerable slice of the federal funds. In the face of this demand of the already overburdened treasury, it would seem that the friends of the Bourne bill could take little or no cheer.

President Underpaid.

There are few among those having knowledge of the drains to which the executive purse is subjected, however, who will not admit that he is underpaid. While President Roosevelt has not openly advocated the passage of Senator Bourne's bill, he recently said to a caller at the White House that seven years' experience running the executive establishment had taught him a valuable lesson in economy. In short, he has learned that it takes mighty good management to run the place and keep up appearances without overstepping his salary allowance. President Roosevelt is in no sense a "lavish spender," yet it has always been his desire to maintain the traditional brilliancy of White House entertainments. In doing so it has been necessary more than once for him to call on his private purse.

Everyone knows that the President's salary is $50,000 a year, which is less in some instances than is paid the heads of big present-day corporations. The government also maintains the executive stables and keeps the White House grounds in order, supports the greenhouses that the presidential table may be supplied with flowers on the occasions of entertainment, and provides an allowance for traveling expenses. On the other hand, entertaining, which is distinctly a public function, and entails the biggest item of yearly expense, must be paid by the President himself. Whether he saves from or exceeds his salary is something that must be controlled by the chief executive. This is an anomaly which has impressed Mr. Roosevelt, and he is of the opinion that if Congress would provide a proper sum for entertaining, in addition to the salary of the office, it would be only fair to the President.

High-Salaried European Monarchs.

Contrasted with the emoluments of European rulers, the salary of the President of the United States seems insignificant, even a pittance. It may be explained, however, that these European monarchs have many more demands upon their income, such as the support of regal establishments and ostentatious entertaining far exceeding the cost of that extended by the American President, but almost [illegible] the scale. While King Edward of England receives annually [illegible] from the state, of which one-fourth goes into the privy purse, his royal expenditures are so many and lavish that he is said frequently to be hard pressed for cash. His racing stable alone, which is conducted on a scale of magnificence, costs a fortune annually [illegible]. Another high salaried monarch is Emperor William, who receives $650,000 as emperor of Germany, and $3,937,000 as king of Prussia. His family is a notoriously extravagant one, however, and court gossip is that he has not been able to lay by much for the proverbial rainy day. Francis Joseph receives $2,812,500 as emperor of Austria, and a like amount as king of Hungary. Despite the demands made upon his purse by his numerous extravagant relatives, this aged monarch is said to be one of the world's richest crowned heads. The salary of the king of Italy is $3,700,000 a year, but out of this he must pay several royal pensions. King Alfonso receives $1,787,500 a year and King Leopold of Belgium $875,600, although the latter has profited immensely through his large investments in rubber and ivory in the Congo Free State.

Should Be on Independent Footing.

These comparisons certainly make the presidential salary look insignificant; but few persons in or out of Congress have any idea that the President's salary should be raised to a basis to compare with the emoluments of the foreign rulers. Not even Senator Bourne has had the daring to make this comparison as the leading argument in favor of the proposed salary increase. He does think, though, that the President, along with the common people, has felt the increased cost of living and that Congress, following the policy of raising the salaries of its own members, should put the chief executive on a footing of independence.

Two big features of the Taft inaugural ceremonies will be the military display and the presence in the parade of governors representing some of the principal states. While Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt may have had distinguished men in line in their respective ceremonials, the Taft managers say they intend to eclipse all previous inaugurals.

Governor J. Franklin Fort of New Jersey will be accompanied by his staff and three regiments of state militia. His state was not represented officially at the last inauguration. Pennsylvania will be represented by a brigade of its National guard, which will march up Pennsylvania avenue to the White House under the leadership of Gov. Stuart. Eight years ago the Keystone state had 10,000 troops in line, while three additional regiments from that state will join the Taft parade March 4 next.

Quarters so far have also been engaged for Gov. Hughes of New York, Gov. Deneen of Illinois, Gov. Warner of Michigan, Gov. Curry of New Mexico, Gov. [illegible] of Arizona, [illegible]ers of Maryland, Gov. Davidson of Wisconsin, and Gov. Harmon of Ohio. All these executives will be accompanied by their staffs in uniform and by thousands of state troops.

THE NEW CLOTHES SHOP

Saturday, Jan. 2, '09, Will Start Its First Semi-Annual Suit and Overcoat Sale of High Class Bench-Made Clothes

¶ You've probably found, in buying clothes, that the main thing is quality; the fabrics used, the tailoring, the linings, trimmings, "insides" of the garments; these are the critical points in buying clothes. Questions of color and pattern, of models, or fit these things are plain on the surface; you like them or not, according to your own judgment, but unless you're smarter than the most of us, you can't tell about quality or the inside tailoring from your own knowledge; and yet on the good quality depends the satisfaction and service you are to get from the clothes. These L. Adler Rochester-made garments are the best values ever offered at regular price; but we don't want to carry over a Suit, Overcoat or Trousers, therefore we are making this great cut to clear our tables for Spring goods. If we have your size, you'll be very fortunate, for such values never were offered before.

Don't Blame Your Stomach

When Without Exertion Or Cost You Can Enjoy Meals and Cure Dyspepsia.

Don't blame your stomach or your luck when your meals declare war on your system.

When the stomach won't do its work it is because it cannot.

When foul smelling odors come from your stomach, when the head aches and the sourness of mouth every morning makes you hate your breakfast, when dreams and nightmare assail you, don't give up the fight.

This is the appeal of nature, and it should be heard.

Over-eating, late suppers, poorly chewed food, too rich pastries and under-done cooking are some of the causes of the stomach's ill health.

When the stomach is busy, it presses and churns all the liquid matter from food and with its juices dissolves into liquid form or pulp everything which comes into it.

If such food be poisonous it affects the juices, attacks the stomach, goes into the blood and [illegible] the entire system.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest a full meal easily without material assistance from the stomach. They will restock the gastric fluid with all the elements needed. They build up the blood, destroy sour taste, bad breath, belching, stomach and bowel trouble and quickly restore natural conditions.

One grain of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest 3,000 grains of food in the stomach or in a glass vial without aid of the human digestive apparatus.

The method of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are the methods of Nature.

They contain every requisite for the stomach and digestion. After a meal one of these little tablets when it enters the stomach mingles with the juices, attacks the food and digests it. It removes the fermented and decayed mass lying stagnant there and eases the stomach at once.

It is wholly a question for you to solve. Your druggist will furnish Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets 50c the box, or send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

SAN FRANCISCO BIDS NEW YEAR WELCOME

GREAT VARIETY OF NOISE-MAKING THINGS USED.

Jollification Intensified by Rehabilitation of Downtown Shopping District.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 31.—San Francisco tonight bid adieu to the old and greeted the new year with the greatest carnival of merry-making ever held in this city and, surpassing in unique features and [illegible] the crowds that thronged the streets, all previous celebrations on New Year's Eve for which San Francisco has been famous. The jollification and noise making tonight was largely occasioned by the rehabilitation of the downtown shopping district on Market street, familiarly known in the days before the fire as the "Line," and where the former stores and buildings have been replaced by greater and more magnificent structures. Rival celebrations were in progress in three different parts of the city—in the Mission district, on Fillmore street, which became the retail district immediately after the disaster of April, 1906, and on Market street, each trying to outdo the other in unique and spectacular features, but the greatest crowds were in the downtown district, where the song of the night was "Back, Back to Market Street."

The weather was ideal and Fillmore street from Sacramento to Fulton and Market street from the ferries to Van Ness avenue were masses of humanity with horns, "noise devils," cowbells, megaphones and an infinite variety of noisemaking contrivances, moving under countless arches of brilliant incandescent lights and flags and streamers flying from hundreds of poles. Skyrockets and red fire darted from stands placed at the intersection of the cross streets with the broad central thoroughfare. Military bands were everywhere and about each one a throng of dancers circled and swayed in waltz or two-step over the smooth pavements.

GOOD TIME AT ANTLERS

Manager W. S. Dunning Springs New Year Surprise With Midnight Vaudeville and Dinner.

With matrimonial hopes of leap year faded and expectantly facing the unraveled developments of the new year, the "old maids" waved the old year out and hailed the new year at a surprise party given by Manager W. S. Dunning to the guests at the Antlers hotel, last night at midnight. With becoming modesty, the girls would not permit the publication of their names.

The "surprise party" was an unqualified success, and was attended by at least 100 guests. Following the allegorical appearance of the "old maids," a number of vaudeville acts were introduced by performers from the New Majestic theater, through co-operation of Managers Webber and Tammen, who were guests at the party. Among others appearing were Thornton, conversational pianist; Al Coleman, monologist, and Mandy Barackman, vocalist. Fink's orchestra furnished the music. At the conclusion of the program an elaborate dinner was served the entire party in the cafe.

ARGO WINS CONTENTION; SCHOOL IS EDUCATIONAL

The state civil service commission has dismissed in District Judge Allen's court, in Denver, the mandamus proceedings brought against Superintendent W. K. Argo, of the State School for the Deaf and Blind, in this city, to compel him to furnish the commission with information relative to the employes of the school.

The commission demanded the information on the ground that the institution being on a charity basis comes under its jurisdiction. Argo contended that the school is a purely educational institution, and the dismissal of the case indicates that the civil service commission has agreed with him on this point.

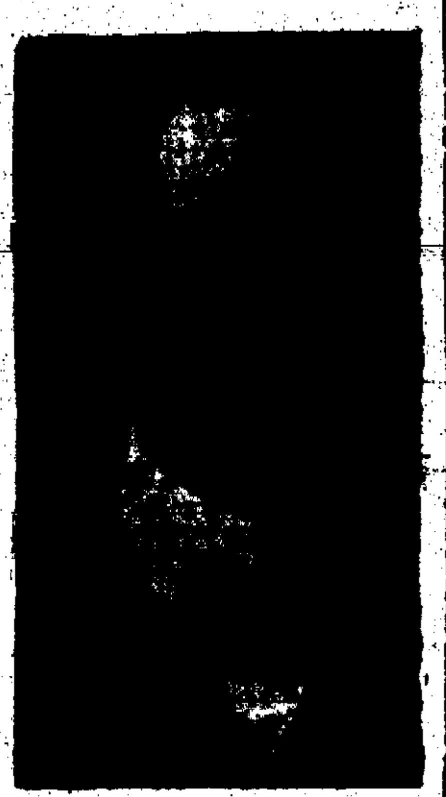
NEW REPRESENTATIVES CRY NEEDLESS EXPENSE.

Plan to Have Only Two District Judges, and Also Do Without Evidence Officer.

Will the number of district judges in the Fourth judicial district be reduced from three to two, and will the office of evidence officer be abolished both in El Paso and Teller counties, the two principal counties in the Fourth district? This is the action proposed by several members of the next state legislature, which convenes in Denver this month. It is argued that two district judges can take care of all the work in the Fourth judicial district, and furthermore, that the position of evidence officer is another needless expense on the taxpayers of the district.

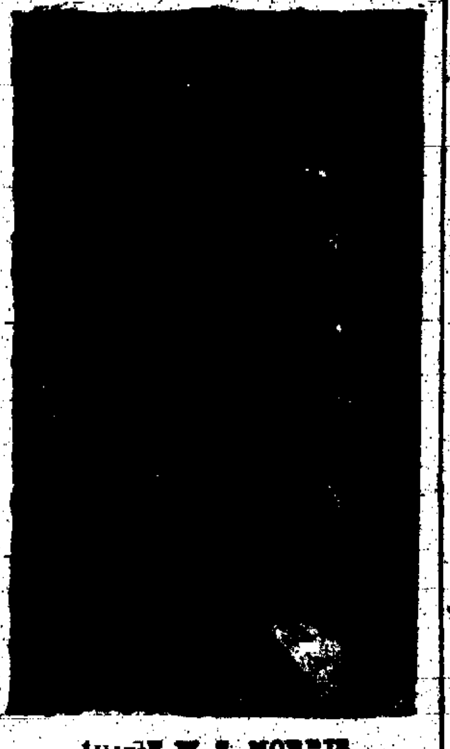
JUDGE J. W. SHEAFOR.

J. W. Sheafor and W. S. Morris, both of this city, and James Owen of Cripple Creek were all elected two years ago, each to serve a six-year term, so that even if the number of judgeships is reduced from three to two, the change will not be made until 1912. The office of evidence officer was created by the last legislature.



JUDGE JAMES OWEN.

The Fourth judicial district embraces the counties of El Paso, Teller, Cheyenne, Kit Carson, Elbert, Douglas and smaller counties, according to the advocates of the change, who also point out that it is exceedingly rare for more than one judge to hold court in either El Paso or Teller county.



JUDGE W. S. MORRIS.

Merton E. Stubbs is the evidence officer for this county. His term expires January 12, when he will assume his duties as clerk of the county court under County Judge J. E. Little. District Attorney-elect J. E. Ferguson will probably appoint a lawyer as deputy, who will also act as evidence officer, thus combining the two offices, in both El Paso and Teller counties, regardless of the action of the legislature.

NEWS OF THE LOCAL COURTS

After being fined $10 and costs in police court yesterday for disturbance, C. A. Johnson was arrested on a warrant sworn out in Justice W. N. Ruby's court, and must stand criminal trial for the same offense. The complainant is Mrs. Lucy A. D. Brown, colored, was fined $5 and costs by Magistrate W. H. Gandy yesterday, for disturbance. He was accused of hitting Jack Goodwin, another negro, over the head with a chair.

Masons and Knights of Pythias Have Enjoyable Dances—Tick of Time Sets Things Loose in Railway Yards.

Father Time added another milestone to his record at 12 o'clock last night, and the old year was ushered out, and the New Year introduced amid the blowing of whistles and horns, and general festivity and merrymaking in Colorado Springs and vicinity.

The Masons of the city gave a dance in the new temple, which was one of the most enjoyable affairs of the season. The event, which was informal, was in charge of the following committee: Lucius P. Lawton, chairman; T. L. Stanley, William B. McCune, John A. Carruthers, E. Friedline and John A. Taggart.

A ball was also given in Majestic hall by Sublime lodge No. 123, Knights of Pythias, with Garden of the Gods company No. 2, and Pikes Peak company No. 10, Uniform Rank, present in full military uniform. The following committees were in charge:

"THE WOLF" SHOWS WALTER AN ARTIST

Melodrama With Scene Laid in Canadian Wilds Makes Big Hit at Opera House

"Every play must have some melodrama and a love theme to make a lasting and popular success," said a noted critic not long ago in commenting on the art of writing plays. In opposition to this statement, a prominent theatrical manager recently stated that the public had no use for melodrama and any play which depended upon this class of development would fail if presented to people of cultured and refined tastes. Eugene Walter, author of "The Wolf," which appeared at the Opera House last night, evidently does not agree with the manager. When Walter, after startling Broadway with his big success, "Paid in Full," announced that his new play was a melodrama, no one except the author and his manager had any confidence in its success. In fact it was plainly condemned by several dramatic editors before it even had a hearing. The fact that "The Wolf" was eventually produced at a high class theater and played for months to high priced houses, speaks well for Mr. Walter's judgment.

"The Wolf" is a frank, strong, terse melodrama, with plenty of action and incident. If it drags at times it is due more to the players than to the play. The author knows his subject and he dealt with it openly and without fear of treading upon the conventionalities of playwriting. Walter was a newspaper man before he turned author and consequently knows humanity at first hand. He has mixed with men and women, and so his characters are true to life, clearly drawn and are human beings, which cannot be said of all men and women we see upon the stage.

"The Wolf" may not be worth much as a literary product; it may not contain much philosophy; it may not solve any great problem of life, and it may be theatrical at times; nevertheless it cannot be denied that it is a strong, interesting drama of every-day occurrences and consequences. There are parts of it which an experienced playwright would never be guilty of doing, but there are many of our experienced playwrights who would be only too glad to lay claim to such a photographic piece of work as is "The Wolf." When we see his first play "Paid in Full" at the Opera House today, a play of entirely different class of people and different theme, we can better judge his ability.

As for the company, there is not a single member of the small cast that can be called bad, although some might be improved upon. Andrew Robson as Jules is almost ideal in the part. As the half-breed French-Canadian lover, he presents a manly appearance. His dialect is rich and correct; his love making soft, passionate and tender; his anger that of a half-breed; and his entire characterization splendid. Alfred Swensen as the engineer, is satisfactory though not entirely so. He has a disagreeable part to play, and an unsympathetic one, but it is an unusually fine bad-man role. The villain is not a sneaking, low-down coward, but a brave bad man. There is a debonnair about the part and other opportunities which Swensen did not realize. Ben Lamar as the father presents one of the most interesting and most complete characterizations seen here in many months. Conrad Cantzen as B'Atiste, a man of few words, is thoroughly adequate, and makes much out of a few effective movements. Louis Haines plays the "comedy relief" part and pleased the audience though he does not get all out of the role that others have. Lorie Palmer plays the only female role, that of Hilda. It does not offer many opportunities to the actress. The make-ups are all excellent and the costuming realistic.

BIGGER ASSORTMENTS, BETTER GOODS AND LOWER PRICES THAN EVER AT KAUFMAN'S GREATEST WHITE SALE.

MEN AND THEIR FASHIONS.

From the London Times.

Most men nowadays do not get much pleasure from dress, and scarcely notice the changes of fashion in men's clothes. They are vaguely aware that a hat looks odd when its shape is old-fashioned; and they accept the hat of the moment because they do not wish to look odd themselves. But this is a merely negative interest. They are also apt to be contemptuous of women's greater interest in the fashions, as if it were a mark of frivolity.

This is an ignorant mistake. Dress is or ought to be an art, and therefore, if only a minor act, it is a more serious matter than any of the games to which many men give so much time and pains. Besides, men have only become indifferent to their clothes in modern times.

In the heroic age of Elizabeth they made themselves as smart as peacocks. Great soldiers and poets then took pains to be in the height of the fashion, and fashions changed with some violence and rapidity. In the eighteenth century, too, which we do not think of as a time of effeminacy, and when men were wanting neither in enterprise nor in seriousness, they were as splendid and extravagant in their dress as women.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR.

From the New York Press.

If a girl's eyes cross she can think they do it in a very coquettish way.

The way a man can keep on being crazy over a girl is for her to keep on being crazy over some other fellow.

The honeymoon is mostly over when the couple quit buying their meals in hotels and the bride tries to provide them at home.

The reason a woman wants to get clothes in the very newest fashion is so as to go and call in them on all her friends who haven't got them yet.

No matter how clever a man knows his wife is, it makes him groan to have her ask him to explain why a company he has stock in is not trying to cheat him when it calls its surplus a liability.

There is no higher phase of culture, and there is nothing which beautifies conduct and character like the practical and perpetual use of the Golden Rule in daily life."—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

"The treason of one generation is the loyal principle of another. The crank of today is the hero of the hereafter."—Theodore Roosevelt.

"We deplore the benighted condition of the dark continent and collect vast sums to convert the heathen; when TRUE, REAL BROTHERHOOD is less known in our midst than in darkest Africa. Change, even for the better, breaks up old customs; human nature dislikes that which disturbs old habits unless there is money in it. The social world sets its face against reform and is potent for mischief, because it disturbs the respectability it claims for itself, and the old way of doing things. May the wisdom of "THE ORDER OF OWLS" spread over the land of the free and the home of the brave.—William Jennings Bryan.

What Press Agents Say

"PAID IN FULL."

What the author says about it.

It has always been my idea that a dramatist or playwright, whichever you may choose to call him, confesses a weakness when he speaks of the genesis of the play or the purpose he had in mind when he wrote it. Looking over the critical comments upon "Paid in Full" I find there has been a varying impression as to exactly what the purpose was of this play. Numerous critics have quoted the source of the main situation, crediting it to other dramatists. But as a matter of fact the basis of the story was taken from life and given to me by an actress who is now starring on Broadway. The man involved is also starring on Broadway and the great scene in the second act, where he asks her to sacrifice her honor for his own selfish advantage, was the positive incident which separated this man from his wife and caused her to divorce him. It was after the relating of this almost incredible, repugnant story that I based the entire work of "Paid in Full." "Mona Vanna" I have never read.

In the character of Joseph Brooks I have tried to show a man, who, to use a phrase of Broadway vernacular, is "four-flushing" in the ranks of reformers. The statement of many that such a man as Brooks does not exist is absurd. I can go into the lobbies of four or five hotels that I know of and shoot off a charge of bird-shot in the corridor, with a certainty that I will land on a dozen or more who will turn the same trick that Brooks did, without batting an eye.

Matinee prices, 25c, 50c, 75c, $1.00; night, 50c, 75c, $1.00 and $1.50.

MAY FIGMAN COMING.

Mr. Figman comes to the Opera House next week in the splendid comedy drama "The Substitute" by Evelyn Greenleaf Sutherland and Beulah M. Dix. There should be no question of the result. Last season Mr. Figman was a comparative stranger, but he more than "made good" and it is doubtful if the theater will be large enough to hold the people who want to see him this season. Mr. Figman is an artist in every sense of the word and his play is a real play. Such performances as he gives make the weary theatergoer feel there is still hope for the drama after all. Mr. Figman will be supported by a company of superior quality and will bring a complete organization.

CORINNE TOMORROW.

Corinne, the peerless singing comedienne who has a remarkable record of brilliant achievements in farce, musical comedy, comedy drama, and comic opera, will be seen at the Opera House tomorrow evening in a character said to be absolutely different from any she has ever portrayed in the musical play "Lola from Berlin," by John J. McNally, also said to be a distinct departure by this author from the line of work with which his name has so long been associated. The purpose of the managers, star, and author, has been to create something unique, and the interesting characters tell an agreeable story of modern life rich in quaint humor, punctuated with wit, and illustrated with songs and ensembles that consistently belong to the situation in which they are placed. The lyrics and music are said to be the best yet written by those successful authors, William Jerome and Jean Schwartz and include such hits as "I Think of You the Whole Year Round," "I'd Sooner Be a Has-been," "Unter der Linden," "Beneath the Moon," "Signa," "Just Home From College," "Poor Little English Man."

JAMES J. CORBETT.

"Facing the Music" for the first time here will be the attraction at the Opera House Monday evening, with James J. Corbett in the star part. Manager H. H. Frazee, under whose direction Mr. Corbett's tour is being conducted, is particularly fortunate in providing his popular star with an exceptionally strong piece and supporting company. Corbett, who has always proved himself to be a box office winner, bids fair to break all financial records this season.

"Facing the Music" was originally produced in New York where it ran several months at the Madison Square Garden theater, and subsequently enjoyed an all-summer run at Powers theater, Chicago, with Henry E. Dixey in the principal character. Those who have heard Mr. Corbett in his highly humorous monologues on the vaudeville stage, will not have to be told that he is really a comedian and will readily agree that it will be no tax on his resources to keep his audiences in a state of hilarity from the rise to the fall of the curtain of this distinctly funny play.

CLIMAX OF SECOND ACT OF "PAID IN FULL," BY EUGENE WALTER, WHICH COMES TO THE OPERA HOUSE, MATINEE AND NIGHT, TODAY.

BARGAIN DAY AT THE CRYSTAL EVERY DAY.

Beginning with the New Year the management has been able to secure an extra thousand feet of beautiful pictures by holding it over for a few hours only, as it is on its way around the large circuit which the company owns and operates. This special inducement can only be offered at the matinees on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, their regular change days. Who ever heard of such a thing, even in a large theater? Over 4,000 feet of beautiful pictures at one performance, the longest program ever given, besides the splendid musical features which the management is constantly trying to improve. Commencing with next Tuesday and Thursday the Crystal is going to give every lady who attends the matinee performances one of the most beautiful pieces of imported Japanese China novelties ever seen in addition to the tickets on the tea sets. Don't that make a full week of bargains? See amusement column for program.

"TAMING OF THE SHREW" AT FAIRYLAND

Fairyland, the popular amusement parlor, will be under new management beginning Monday, and for this reason Manager Braden has secured an exceptionally fine program to offer his patrons for the rest of this week, thus keeping up the high-class of pictures to the last performance, Saturday night. The feature film, beginning today, is "The Taming of the Shrew." If we could see ourselves as others see us what models we would become. Shakespeare doubtless had this in mind when he wrote this masterpiece of comedy, evidently taking his inspiration from Dekker's comedy, "A Medicine for a Curst Wife." One may readily conceive the wonderful possibility for spirited motion picture situations in such a theme, and the biograph has availed itself of every chance, the result being one of the snappiest, funniest films of the kind ever made, besides being elaborate in detail. The story is clearly, though concisely told, depicting the most stirring and interesting portions of the play. It starts just before the arrival of Petruchio to sue for the hand of Katherine, the Shrew; contrasting her nature with that of her sister, Blanca, the gentle. Petruchio woos and wins Katherine in spite of herself, and at once sets out to curb her headstrong humor. This he does by becoming a veritable tyrant himself, and ostensibly all for love of her, showing her first of all how despicable the ill-tempered, restive being is, and finally teaching her that a wife's duty is obedience to her husband, all of which is accomplished in due time. But, oh, my, the story the cooks and servants have to tell. Don't fail to see this extraordinary picture, which requires 1000 feet of film.

As this is the last week under the present management, Manager Braden has secured a special lot of English ware. An assortment of six different articles to select from, some of which are worth many times the admission price.

GADSKI CONCERT.

"The voices of American women are improving every year," declared Mme. Gadski when starting out on tour which is to bring her to the Opera House January 6. "Among all aspirants for the concert stage, however, the percentage of truly good voices is naturally small. Sometimes out of a dozen I hear, there will be two or three that give promise, but usually the percentage is smaller. American girls lack patience; they expect to achieve fame before they are ready to appear in public at all. At my home in Stettin I spent nine years learning to place my voice, and even then I worked gradually from part to part. But the American girl likes to take up some 'method' that promises quick results.

"There are no French or Italian or German methods of learning to sing. There is only one method: find your voice; then practice, practice, practice—for days and months and years. Then, if you have the soul, and love your art, you will make a singer."

Dismissing the mercenary element from the artistic idea, the New Majestic theater is this week offering the theater-going public of Colorado Springs the very strongest vaudeville bill that has ever been presented upon any stage in this city. As a matter of fact, the offerings of the New Majestic will bear the closest comparison with the presentations of the leading eastern vaudeville houses. The best that the noted Considine-Sullivan circuit has to offer will be presented in Colorado Springs.

The sensation of continental Europe and of America, the most expensive act ever presented in vaudeville, the Great Lind in his "Dance of the Five Senses," is making a tremendous hit. As a matter of fact he completely mystifies his audience, so clever is his impersonation of the eternal feminine.

Not by any means a misnomer is the title of "Piano Wizard," given Harry Thornton appearing at the New Majestic. His interpretations and imitations place him in a distinctive class among pianists.

A feature act with the big Barnum & Bailey shows, the Cycling Leanders, is certainly making good in Colorado Springs. They so cleverly interpose scientific skill with comedy cutups that they keep the audience laughing one moment and in a state of wonderment the next. Mandy Barackman is winning approval with the patriotic song, "My Own United States." The song is presented in a pretty setting of illustrations.

SAME NAME, SAME LIVES.

Remarkable Coincidence in the Experiences of Two George W. Anthonys.

From the New York Times.

Sharing the same name, the same city address, and in common many of the most remarkable experiences of their lives, is the result of the discovery of a strange series of coincidences made by George W. Anthony, of Burlington, N. J., and George W. Anthony, of Burlington, N. C. Despite the similarity in names and the fact that their lives have seemingly run in parallel channels, the two men remained in ignorance of each other's existence until a short time ago.

It was the mistake of a postal clerk that finally brought the two men together. Mistaking an "N. J." for an "N. C." in the state address, the man in the postoffice sent to the southern Anthony a letter that should have come to Burlington, N. J. Explanation of the mistake and the rectifying of the same brought out the facts of the dual coincidences. A short time after this the men met at the home of Mr. Anthony, in New Jersey.

Recounting their experiences, it was discovered that while the New Jersey Anthony had been a drummer boy in the Northern army during the Civil war, his guest had filled a similar capacity in a Southern regiment, and that their commands had faced one another on more than one battlefield. At the same time they had been mustered out and began the fight for a livelihood. The upward struggle for both was fought with much hardship, but both won, the man in the North to build up an immense retail trade, and his Southern namesake to own a rich lumber trade.

Then the two men found that even in [illegible] pursued them. Each had lost his wife about the same time, and both were widowers when they met.

Now, to their mutual surprise, a new experience has been duplicated. Mr. Anthony, of New Jersey recently married for the second time. He and his wife had scarcely returned from their wedding tour when he received a letter bearing the information that his [illegible] namesake in North Carolina has also married.

The two men have been unable to discover the least trace of even a distant family connection.

BAR TO AERIAL FLEETS.

London Cable to the New York Herald.

Lord Rayleigh made some interesting remarks with reference to aeroplanes and flying machines at the Royal society Thursday night.

This great physicist admits that in the technical sense the problem of flying through the air has been solved, but he evidently does not think that the invention will be of much practical use. He does not share the enthusiasm of the German emperor in anticipating that fleets of aeroplanes will soon be flying through the air.

There is a large gulf to bridge, according to Lord Rayleigh, before flying machines can be made available for purposes of real utility. He does not entertain the idea that communications between different countries will be carried on by air-going ships. He thinks that they may be used for purposes of reconnoitering and exploring, but, in the latter case, no exploration on a large scale could be carried out, owing to the difficulty of carrying provisions.

An aeroplane of enormous size is only able to carry two or three men, and would be, therefore, unable to take a large quantity of provisions for feeding them.

All men are equal as long as they remain in the bachelor class.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 1, 1909.

ENTER 1909.

THE year 1909 begins under conditions that could hardly be more favorable, both for Colorado and the nation at large. The Presidential election—that quadrennial disturbance which the business interests regard as a nightmare—is over, and we are to hear no more of politics for two years. In two months we are to inaugurate a President in whom the whole people, irrespective of party, have the most implicit confidence and it is assured that in so far as lies in his power he will continue the Roosevelt policies but without the irritating methods that have made their enforcement so objectionable to a large class of the population. Big problems confront the Taft administration, but there will be a big man at its head to meet them, and it is a perfectly safe prediction that the next President will take his place in history as one of the nation's really great Chief Executives.

The year just ended has been by no means as bad as was generally expected at its beginning. Twelve months ago the country was suffering from the partial paralysis of the October panic. The revival of business that had been predicted for the first of the new year had not begun—it was not even in sight. Conditions in Colorado and elsewhere throughout the West were better than in the East, but they were bad enough everywhere. Money was scarce, railroads had stopped all improvements and were cutting expenses to the lowest possible figure, factories were running on short time and in all industrial lines retrenchment was the watchword. Millions of workingmen were idle and everywhere the depression was more acute than at any time since 1896. The prospect for 1908 was a gloomy one and the most courageous optimists found it hard to be cheerful.

THE TIDE OF RETURNING PROSPERITY. Fortunately these conditions have gradually passed away. It is true that the tide of prosperity has not yet reached the high point it had attained prior to the panic, for the recovery has been gradual, but nevertheless conditions throughout the country can fairly be characterized as satisfactory. There are few unemployed, even in the industrial centers where stagnation was most pronounced. The resumption of manufacturing and other industrial activities has increased freight shipments until the business of the railroads is again normal and we may confidently expect a continuation during the coming year of the great improvements and extensions in which the roads were engaged when the financial stringency began.

It is hard to overestimate the importance of such enterprises to the country's welfare. The railroads employ more men than any other industry, and their condition is reflected in millions of homes. The vast construction enterprises which were carried on for several years prior to the recent panic put money into the pockets of so many wage-earners that its beneficial effects were felt everywhere. Now that the revival of business is well under way we may expect soon to see a complete return of the old conditions.

COLORADO AND THE NEW YEAR. So far as Colorado is concerned it might almost be said that there have been no hard times. From its high eminence on the backbone of the continent the Centennial State has surveyed the troubles of the rest of the country with sympathy but without fear. Its business has been affected adversely by the depression elsewhere, and several big industrial enterprises have been temporarily checked by the withdrawal of Eastern capital, but on the whole the state has suffered very little.

It begins the new year in excellent condition. Eastern capital is again seeking investment, new industries are being developed, the production of gold, silver, coal and other forms of wealth stored in the earth is up to the usual figure, agriculture, horticulture and stock-growing are thriving, manufactures especially the beet sugar industry—are growing rapidly, and the stream of immigration is steadily increasing.

When we survey the field here at home the outlook is no less encouraging. Colorado Springs is not a boom town—for which we may well be thankful—but it has enjoyed a steady growth from the beginning, and this growth has continued in 1908. Conditions here are peculiar; we depend for our prosperity almost entirely on climate and scenery, both of which are imperishable. There is no denying the advantages which come from the support of a rich agricultural territory, or from thriving manufactures but Colorado Springs has grown and prospered without either of these. It has based its claims solely on its possession of unsurpassed scenic attractions and the most healthful climate in the world. These have been sufficient to insure its healthy growth. During the last year business has been good in all lines, especially during the holiday season; there has been considerable building activity, and according to present prospects there will be a great deal more during 1909.

This is the day of the optimist. Start the new year right by being cheerful and contented. Count your blessings, not the least of which is the privilege of living in Colorado Springs, the best town in the best state in the country.

THE LAND OF OPPORTUNITY.

THE career of the late Claus Spreckels, the millionaire sugar manufacturer who died in San Francisco a few days ago, was a remarkable testimonial to the truth of the familiar saying that America is the land of opportunity. Spreckels landed on American soil in 1848 with [illegible] in his pocket and a large stock of grit and energy. Since then he has done a number of wonderful things, among them the accumulation of a fortune variously estimated at from $50,000,000 to $75,000,000. He engaged in various kinds of industry, building railroads, running steamship lines, but most important of all, the development of the sugar business. He built up an enormous industry of this kind on the Pacific Coast and in Hawaii, and when the Sugar Trust invaded his field he retaliated by building the biggest sugar refinery in the world in Philadelphia. The fight waxed so warm that the Trust was glad to call it off and Spreckels emerged victor.

Spreckels was one of the biggest men on the Pacific Coast, and though his career was no more notable than those of many other Americans, it is especially interesting because of his early obscurity. There is something romantic about the idea of this poor German youngster, landing almost penniless in a strange country among a people whose language he could not speak, working his way up, gaining experience and power in the school of hard knocks until he became a dominant figure in one of the greatest industries of the land.

It is not surprising that the story of such a career finding its way back to Europe dazzles the imagination of the younger generation until they come to look upon America as not merely the land of opportunity but a land of untold wealth for the poorest comers. This conception accounts in no small part for the stream of immigrants that flows through Ellis Island at the rate of a million or more every year. Of course most of them are doomed to disappointment, for not every poor German boy can become a sugar king, and under the present laws the boy with only $3 in his pocket would be deported as an "undesirable immigrant," but in a general sense the conception of America holds good—it is and ever has been the land of opportunity.

GERMANY AND SOUTH AMERICA.

From the New York Globe

Germany and the United States are and have been for a number of years on a most friendly footing. And Germany seems less likely than ever to jump at an opportunity—such as some may conceive that Castro would facilitate—to secure a foothold in South America. We are not likely to see her attitude of the present time interpreted in the way that her intervention of 1902 in Venezuela was. Then many Americans declared that such action was clear evidence of her ambitions, that she would have purchased the Danish West Indies had she dared, and that it was through her secret influence that the United States was prevented from buying them in 1902. The menace of Germany in South America is not political. It is commercial and economic only.

INDIANS AS ATHLETES.

From the New York World

The native Americans of the leading tribes show an extraordinary high degree of strength and endurance. Carlisle, though not a large school, turns out a splendid football team of Indians whose prowess is always popular. At lacrosse and baseball Indians excel. Parkman describes the daring of an Indian boy of 16 who ran his bareback pony alongside buffalo bulls and brought them down with arrows—which is no mean feat for a green warrior.

If the scientists are right who say that Americans of European stock tend in many generations to revert to the Indian type, we need at least have no fear on that account of physical degeneracy. And considering the relatively remarkable number of eminent Americans who have been wholly or largely of Indian blood, mental degeneracy need be as little expected.

THE PRESIDENT AND PARDON

From the Springfield Republican

Stimson points out in his recent work on "Federal and State Constitutions," that English constitutional [illegible] established the principle that the king cannot grant pardons in advance. Hence even though our constitution fails to contain an explicit provision to this effect it may be regarded as implied—as a message of constitutional law inherited along with much else as an essential part of Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence. At any rate the impropriety of executive interference in advance of final judicial action is so obvious as to have called for no express prohibition in the American constitution.

If President Roosevelt is impetuously disposed to interfere in this case at the present stage, yet he cannot have about him advisers who would counsel otherwise than that he should keep his hands off. A presidential pardon at the end of the adjudication, in case the lower court is sustained, would be of great and probably unfortunate consequence, however we may view the merits of the controversy, but a pardon now is simply unthinkable—or would be if Mr Roosevelt were not President.

IMMIGRANT SAVINGS FOR EUROPE.

From the New York World

Of the $5,000,000 in more than 332,500 Christmas money orders taken in one day's ships from this port over $880,000 was bound for Great Britain and over $780,000 for Italy. Austria-Hungary will receive more than $600,000, Sweden more than $340,000 and Germany nearly $200,000. Sons of Greece, who have discovered America so recently that in general immigration tables for 1903 they were bunched among aliens coming from all other parts of Europe, sent $108,000, as against the $46,000 forwarded by sons of France.

A clearer idea of how money earned here goes to the "old home" may be obtained from a statement of a year's remittances in total.

In 1905 the Italians in America alone sent back to Europe more than 295,000 money orders representing $11,000,000, while Austro-Hungarian remitters sent $7,850,000, British $7,500,000, Russian nearly $5,200,000, Japanese $2,100,000 and German more than $1,000,000. In the same year Italians going back to Italy, according to the best estimate possible, changed about $51,000,000 into Italian money which they carried home.

The constant going back and forth of Italian wage-earners and their almost ceaseless carriage or transmission of cash give them special interest in the financial view. Other immigrants send their savings to help parents and dependents in the old country. The Italians do that too, but they also send accumulations for their own establishment in their own sunny land. The transfer of $62,000,000 in a single year, as indicated by the above figures for 1905, becomes of important effect on the national prosperity of Italy.

GOMPERS AND INJUNCTIONS.

From the Chicago Daily News

It is all things considered fortunate that men of the high character and acknowledged worth of Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison have become the agents by whose acts the vital questions of the boycott, the court injunction, contempt of court, the right of free speech and freedom of the press have been brought forward in a way which demands for them full consideration and final judgment by the courts and the people. These questions go to the very foundation of popular government. It is to be expected that they will be settled right in the end, for we have Abraham Lincoln's word for it that no question is ever settled until it is settled right.

In this great controversy the element of peril is the sentiment that there is "one law for the rich and another for the poor." Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison offend a court and are sentenced to jail; a great corporation offends and is fined. It is known that President Roosevelt and other clear-sighted men are greatly disturbed by such demonstrations of difference in the application of the law. Unquestionably the trade unionist and the head of the trust should be equally careful to refrain from unlawful acts. If they offend they should be punished with equal severity. Both, however, are inclined to rail at court decisions. The courts are established by the people for the people. Being human institutions they are fallible.

Americans want all the freedom that is right for them to exercise. It is not difficult to see faults on both sides in this case. The deliberate violation of a court injunction while its validity was being tested in a higher court surely was improper from any point of view.

OBEDIENCE TO THE LAW.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger

Suggestions that President Roosevelt may intervene with the pardoning power to relieve Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison from the sentence imposed upon them for contempt of court are made without regard to the facts. While there is no limitation upon executive clemency, the occasion for its exercise does not occur until the case has been finally determined. This case is still pending on appeal. The defendants are not deprived of their liberty meanwhile and are suffering no injustice that requires relief. For the President to intervene at this stage, prejudging their appeal, would be a contempt of court as flagrant as that of Gompers himself, quite similar in kind, and much more dangerous and anarchistic.

It is plainly impossible for the President to do anything in the matter now even if he were disposed. But those who assume his disposition to interfere forget how he has expressed himself upon this very subject. In his letter to Senator Knox in October last he wrote:

> Mr Gompers, now Mr Bryan's open and avowed ally, has in a letter here quoted attacked the federal courts in unmeasured terms of reproach because by a long line of decisions the equity courts have refused to make an outlaw of the business man; because his right to carry on a lawful business under the peace of the law has been protected by the process of injunction; because, in a word, one of the most vital and fundamental rights of the business world, the right of a business man to carry on his business, has been sustained and not denied by the processes of the courts of equity.

This is the whole substance of the case. The attempt to make it appear that Gompers and the others are penalized for expressing their opinions is mere foolishness. If a newspaper were to carry on a systematic war of detraction and abuse against a particular merchant who had offended it, with the avowed purpose of driving him out of business, could it expect to evade the libel laws and to defy an order of court commanding it to desist by pleading "the freedom of the press"? Gompers was not enjoined even from advocating the abstract right of the boycott; he was specially enjoined from maintaining, against an individual firm, "the blacklist and the secondary boycott," which President Roosevelt in the same letter rightly described as "two of the most cruel forms of oppression ever devised by the wit of man for the infliction of suffering on his weaker fellows."

The "liberty" he claims is to interfere with the liberty of others. The courts exist to protect the liberties of all, of the business man not less than of the labor agitator. To quote President Roosevelt once more in his annual message of 1907:

> Every man must be guaranteed his liberty and his right to do as he likes with his property or his labor so long as he does not infringe the rights of others. No man is above the law and no man is below it, nor do we ask any man's permission when we require him to obey it. Obedience to the law is demanded as a right, not asked as a favor.

This is all that has been demanded of the defendants in the present case. If they can persuade a higher court that the law is not as it has been declared, that is their right. Meanwhile they owe it obedience, and there is no likelihood that the President will take any backward step.

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE

Friday, January 1, 1909

Of many coming feuds the stars complain
But o'er our land prosperity will reign.

Throughout the coming year Mars enters aspects periodically that affect all the continents and almost all the nations thereof, pointing to "battle, rebellions" and destructions of strong places.

Commercial prosperity and material well-being are promised through 1909 for the United States and Canada but great disasters from explosion and other violent agencies are in the sign.

There will be wide spiritual unrest in North America and a new belief will gather many adherents. Armed hands grasping treasure indicate a demand for much money for the army and navy.

The ruling of a fatted city will cause a conflict that will involve many national interests. Traitors among victors' councils will cause trouble and endanger important measures.

They that war with golden weapons will use unexpected methods against their adversaries. A great secret will be unveiled in a place of public judgment.

Among other indications for the year are a conspiracy of enemies against the acts of the new President, a great speculation in the exchanges of New York and Chicago, a medical discovery that promises alleviation and salvation to a multitude and a bold attempt to defeat the will of the people in a great cause.

Friendship by contract augurs but ill for France during the year. The Sun near the square of Mars over Madrid makes a black omen for the king of Spain. In May the New Moon in Russia falls in the conjunction of Mars and the Sun, a sign threatening "bloodshed, destruction of rulers and lost battles."

England is menaced by martial signs. A sign for Europe east of the 4th degree of longitude foretells the "transmigration of a king" and a "rebellion of lords and peasants."

In Asia feuds of race against race and creed against creed are foreomened.

During the winter quarter the United States will be annoyed by news from Washington. There is also a menace against Washington of treachery from a foreign nation. On the Pacific coast a prominent official will be in danger. In the south there is a menace of trouble between the races and excitement over a great white crop.

England, Germany and Denmark will probably suffer throughout this quarter from the eclipse influence, which also brings marked danger to a great ruler.

On this first day of the year, Uranus is in elliptic conjunction with Mercury, and both planets are in benefic aspect to the Moon.

It should be an excellent day to ask favors and to push all pending affairs that are not primarily business.

At noon today herbs under the Sun—almond, juniper, mustard, olive and walnut—are good. At 7:30 p m comes a good hour for herbs under the Moon—pumpkin, wintergreen, watercress, white rose and lettuce.

Women with this birthdate will find a sure guide in a coming problem if they hold undeviatingly to honor and justice.

Inspiration and fortune are promised by Saturn to men with this birthdate. Those in employment will find it if they seek.

The sign over children born this day is for honor, pride and independence. Girls may develop a great talent for teaching. Boys should grasp mathematics readily.

1908 Was Worth While

The pleasures derived from services well rendered. The good feelings that come from giving better values, increasing our customers' income by making their money go further. The delights of the collector enjoyed in the securing of the finest goods. The realization of the fact that in dealing in the better apparel the workers are being helped to a better living. The satisfaction of making every transaction really profitable to the customer as well as to ourselves. Our idealisms proved practical in a discouraging year. The many demonstrations of our customers' confidence in our dealings and appreciation of our efforts. The steady substantial growth of the business we love. A fair profit honorably won to 1908 we owe all this.

The CANO-DOWNS Co.

RAINBOWS AND PIE.

Yes, I'm living in hope, banking on promises made,
Hoping by night and by day that a plum on my plate will be laid.
I went to the front like a man, I canvassed my ward end to end!
There are hundreds of men I can name I persuaded to vote for my friend.
And now he has something to give. I am haunting his office all day—
I want a political job and I long for political pay!

Next year I'll have money to burn, at least I am hoping I will;
In the heat of the fight I was there. I argued while others stood still.
His cards I was proud to give out, his pictures I nailed on the walls,
And I stood in the rear to applaud whenever he entered our halls.
It was valiant service I gave; now he ought to throw something my way.
I want a political job and I long for political pay.

I don't say for sure that I'll land, but I'm hoping I will and perhaps
My name he will put on the list when doing political steps.
I'm hoping he'll send for me soon, I am hoping he'll say unto me,
"I want to do something for you; what job would you like it to be?"
I'm dogging his footsteps by night and my friends have gone to him to say
I want a political job and I long for political pay.

SHORTCOMINGS OF NEW YORK JUSTICE.

Victor Rousseau in Harper's Weekly

We have seen that the arrests for felony in New York county have increased twice as quickly as the population during the last seven years, and that [illegible] per cent of all arrests convictions are secured. Now let us turn to the statistics of convictions and acquittals in New York county.

During the 20 years 1887 to 1907 convictions were secured for homicide in 77 per cent of all cases tried. During the past seven years however convictions have been secured in only 55 per cent. In New York county during the year 1907 convictions were secured in 62 per cent of all felony cases brought to trial.

And yet in 75 to 80 per cent of all arrests for serious crimes the prisoner goes free. The leakage occurs mainly through the inability of the detective force to secure adequate evidence for presentation to the grand juries.

Of the 843 arrests for homicide made within the five boroughs of Greater New York in 1907 only 109 cases were submitted to the grand juries in the county of New York. Allowing every advantage against the inevitable deductions that we shall have to draw, we may assume in the absence of statistical information that during this same period 200 cases were submitted to the grand juries within the five boroughs. This means that 643 of those arrested for homicide went free before they ran the gauntlet of these archaic but interesting survivals of medieval justice.

Of 32 persons arrested for arson during the same period just 18—on the same estimate—reached the grand juries.

Of 3,117 persons arrested for burglary the grand juries put 1,900 on the rack. The rest had been discharged at an earlier period in the proceedings.

And 4,044 cases of grand larceny were investigated by the grand juries out of 6,892 arrests. The other 2,848 were discharged at an earlier period in the proceedings.

That is to say 76 per cent of all persons arrested for homicide were set free before the grand juries investigated their cases, 44 per cent of those arrested for arson, 39 per cent of those arrested for burglary, 41 per cent of those arrested for grand larceny.

But the submission of a case to a grand jury by no means renders the case of the accused hopeless. Let us examine the returns for the county of New York for the year 1907. Here there is no estimating or deducting; we have the figures in black and white. Of 109 charges of homicide which came before them the grand juries dismissed 47, 13 were subsequently discharged and 10 acquitted. The grand juries dismissed 5 out of 9 arson suspects and 3 more were subsequently discharged without trial. The grand juries dismissed 131 out of 950 persons accused of burglary, 147 were discharged subsequently and 131 acquitted. Grand juries dismissed 454 persons charged with grand larceny out of 2,022, 475 were subsequently discharged and 200 acquitted.

Justice in New York is a succession of sieves with constantly narrowing meshes; perhaps this is what justice ought to be—only the police sieve has meshes so wide that whales and sea serpents are able to slip through with the minnows. It is here that the vast majority of suspects escape—between arrest and the grand juries. There is not evidence enough to hold them.

THE INEXORABLE LAWS

We must sooner or later discover the existence and complete dominance of inexorable laws in the realm of spiritual life. The natural world so called is not more under the domain of law than is the spiritual. As a matter of fact the two realms are one and the same, and the law that is manifest in the one is also dominant in the other. In so far as your religion is based upon the cognizance of law is it in accord with the highest wisdom. If you are relying upon any supernatural suspension of law by the mercy of God, you will some day have reason to regret your mistake.

PROPER DIET FOR SOLDIERS

British Army Circles Interested in Experiments by United States.

From the New York Times

The fact that opposite views regarding the feeding of the soldier are entertained here and in England is creating a good deal of interest in British and American army circles. Here it is said the army cook book is to be revised in the direction of simplicity; in the British army a greater diversity is thought to be desirable.

In this connection [illegible] commenting on a paper on the subject read by Major Robert J. Blackham recently before a meeting of the British Medical Association says [illegible]

That [illegible] feeding [illegible] is [illegible] general good and the [illegible] is demonstrated by the [illegible] improvement that is nearly always effected in a comparatively short time in the physical condition of young soldiers. This is specially noticeable in Great Britain where the majority of the recruits for the army are drawn from a low class of society, many of whom when enlisted are undersized and emaciated, [illegible] a few showing signs of degeneracy. Among such as these the beneficent influence of a nourishing diet is most striking. In the course of a year the thin weedy pale town youth will often be developed into a sturdy, muscular and well-nourished soldier. But although the soldier's diet in the American and British armies is generous and satisfactory, some among the authorities are constantly seeking to change it.

Referring to the results of Chittenden, Major Blackham said he could not think it would be impossible to induce groups of soldiers in different parts of the empire to adopt a modified dietary under the supervision of officers of the corps and the results of such investigations might go far to settle some very important questions.

Some feeding experiments have been undertaken in the American army, but not upon a sufficiently wide scale to make the results [illegible] and [illegible] cannot be denied, however, that the British army and [illegible] lend themselves [illegible] to this kind of research, [illegible] situated in widely diverse climates and the men in most respects are eminently fitted to be the objects of such investigations.

According to [illegible] feeding of the British soldiers in barracks Major Blackham noted that reforms had been introduced, excellent in so far as the diet was varied, but to be deprecated in that it was too liberal, while [illegible] the results of Chittenden it was excessive. In European armies generally, including the British army, there was [illegible] too great sameness of diet.

ARRIVAL OF NEW YEAR

LAST DAY OF YEAR AT STOCK EXCHANGE DULL

Only Small Volume of Business Transacted Few Important Changes in Prices.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—The last day of the year at the stock exchange was a dull one. Only a small volume of business was done, and there were few important changes in prices. Business was in the hands of small traders for the most part. The strong advance in New York Central was attributed to the belief that E. H. Harriman was to become an active counselor in its affairs, rumor assigning him to the chairmanship of the board. The dropping tendency in some other Harriman properties was attributed at the same time to persisting rumors that the gentleman's health was not entirely satisfactory. This contradiction seemed to escape notice and offers an example of the mixed and irregular character of the small trading.

There was some special pressure on United States Steel, and this was explained as being due to apprehension of harm from the reduction of steel duties. Trade authorities testify that there is some hesitation amongst consumers of iron and steel products about making purchases, owing to the belief that the expected changes in the tariff will bring some price readjustments.

The close of the year saw no flurry in the money market. Rates for call loans, in fact, were rather easier than in the last few days. The week's currency movement has been in favor of New York, the subtreasury operations contributing over $2,000,000 to the banks, while the interior has sent an excess of that much or more over what has gone out from here. The rate of premium for the New York exchange at Chicago has fallen somewhat in the last two days.

It is not expected that rates for money will relapse to greater ease immediately after New Years. The New York money settlements usually make their influence felt for a day or two after the immediate period for the large payments. Confidence remains unabated, however, in a coming period of great ease in the money market.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $6,132,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call.

1908 BELOW PREVIOUS YEARS

Year Just Closed Not Up to 1907 and 1906 in Business Way.

Bradstreet's Report.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

Holiday quiet has ruled in trade and industry, with preinventory rates among both buyers and clearance offerings by the retailers leading features. Trade in regular lines felt the influence of unreasonably mild weather early in the week, but toward the close a cold wave in the west gave some stimulus to business in seasonable goods. Results of the year are now being arrived at in many lines of wholesale trade. While conditions are irregular, preventing characterization as a whole, the year was below 1907 and 1906 at many cities, and profits were certainly smaller all around. It is to be noted that reports from the surplus grain-producing sections of the west are relatively the best. Collections are irregular. The feeling generally in all lines, as compared with a year ago, has very much improved. A good trade is looked for in 1909, but there is little expectation of a boom.

The iron and steel markets were very quiet this week, year-end inventories and holiday observances being responsible for much of the dullness. Prices, however, continue firm. New orders for pig iron have been very moderate, but cast iron pipe interests are inquiring for a comparatively good tonnage. The outlook is clouded to some extent by fear of tariff revisions.

Copper is firm. European consumers having purchased more freely, and at the same time American interests are said to have taken quite liberal quantities. Business failures in the United States for the week ending December 30 number 299, against 222 last week, 421 in the week ending January 2, 1908; 183 in 1907; 230 in 1906 and 279 in 1905. Business failures in Canada for the week ending with December 30 number 28, which compares with 23 last week and 27 in the corresponding period a year ago.

LIQUIDATION IS CAUSE OF SLUMP IN WHEAT

Market Is Weak Throughout Day Owing to Lack of Substantial Support.

CHICAGO, Dec. 31.—General liquidation of a preholiday character caused a slump in the price of wheat here today, closing quotations showing net losses of ⅛ to 1⅛ @¼. Corn, oats and provisions also closed weak.

The great majority of traders in the wheat pit, who were "long," were inclined to "even up" at the end of the year and in anticipation of the holiday tomorrow, and, in consequence, the market lacking any substantial support, was weak throughout the entire day.

News of the day also favored such selling, the bulk of the gossip being of a bearish nature. The Liverpool market was weak, notwithstanding an advance here yesterday. Stocks of wheat at Minneapolis and Duluth increased 380,000 bushels, and the total exports of wheat and flour for the week from the United States and Canada were equal to only 3,116,000 bushels, compared with 5,110,000 bushels the corresponding week a year ago. The distant deliveries displayed the greatest weakness as the desire of shorts in the December option to cover sales caused that delivery to close almost where it left off the previous day.

Materialization of the predicted cold wave had little effect. With the exception of the December delivery the market closed at almost the bottom, with May at $1.07⅞ and July at 98⅞. Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 577,000 bushels.

The slump in wheat was one of the chief reasons for a weak corn market. The market closed weak, with prices ⅛ to ½c below the previous close, with May at 61⅛ and July at 61⅛@¼c.

Oats closed weak, with prices ⅛ to ⅜ lower, compared with the previous close. Final quotations on May were 51⅝@⅝ and on July 46⅛.

The weakness of grain offset an advance of 5 to 10c in the price of live hogs, and caused moderate weakness in provisions during the final hour of the day. At the close prices were unchanged to 10c lower.

The board of trade and the butter and egg board will be closed tomorrow.

WE WILL CLOSE CLUBS SAYS MAYOR

Colorado City Council Backs I. A. Foote in Fight on Liquor Places.

Democratic and Other Clubs Ordered to Shut Doors, With Alternative of a Fight in the Courts.

What promises to become a vigorous campaign against the existence of clubs where liquor is dispensed in Colorado City was opened last night. A star chamber session of the city council was held, and decisive steps taken.

Chief of Police E. N. Wolfe was instructed by a unanimous vote to notify N. B. and Gus Hamer, directors of the Democratic club, on Colorado avenue, near Fifth street, that if the doors of the place are not closed by midnight tomorrow, prosecution will be begun next Monday.

Mayor Ira A. Foote announced, at the close of the meeting, that similar action will be taken in regard to the other clubs of the city. The Rocky Mountain Colored club had been notified to close its doors last night. If they are found open today or hereafter, prosecution will result, it is declared.

All of the councilmen were present at the meeting, with the exception of Councilman William Lusinsky, who, although thoroughly in sympathy with the movement, was ill and unable to appear.

"We are going into this thing vigorously and intend to put an end to the club business in Colorado City," said Mayor Foote last night. "These clubs are merely unlicensed saloons. If our orders are not obeyed and the Democratic club and others which we have ordered closed still remain open, it will not be a single prosecution which will follow, but trial after trial until we succeed in our purpose."

REPORTS ON CONVENTION

Alex. Smith Tells of Work Done by Church Council.

Economic principles applied to the church and the merger of small struggling churches into one larger church is the purpose of the National Church Federated council, according to a report submitted Wednesday night at the union prayer meeting in the M. Howard Agnew Johnston and Alex. Smith was appointed to carry out the suggestions. Delegates from 30 Protestant churches took the initial steps in this movement at a conference held in New York three years ago. The Philadelphia conference was an outgrowth of this meeting.

"A BIRD OF A JAG" TRACED.

Sir Isaac Newton Also Responsible for "Drunk as an Owl."

From the New York World.

Professor Vladimir G. Simkovitch, in charge of the Morgan collection of manuscripts now on exhibition at Columbia, unearthed yesterday what seems to be conclusive evidence that Sir Isaac Newton is responsible for the modern expressions as "drunk as an owl," "a bird of a jag" and "happy as a lark."

The professor in turning over yesterday a notebook of Sir Isaac's, filled otherwise with abstruse mathematical calculations came upon this:

"To make Birdes Drunk—Take such meat as they (the birdes) love, such as wheat or barley; steep in lees of wine or in ye juice of ye hemlock, and leave it where ye birdes use to haunt; as also sodden garlick sprinkled among ye corne sowne."

Sir Isaac then goes on to describe the probable effects of rum on such innocent fowl as crows, partridge and the like. He is intensely scientific. He "postulates" a good deal and he "assumes" to the limit. One can almost see the cock sparrow falling off his perch and the lord of the barnyard being taken home by his good gray hen.

But Sir Isaac craftily refrains from saying that he ever saw a drunken bird or that he ever lured a bird from the paths of rectitude. Instead he makes the careful marginal note "extravagants" as though to lull the chance reader into the belief that a man like Sir Isaac wouldn't do such a thing.

Excitement went to fever heat among the under classmen at Columbia as soon as what Professor Simkovitch had found out about Sir Isaac became generally known on the campus. A few of the boldest freshmen were heard to declare that they wished they had been birds in Sir Isaac's time and had lived near his house. Others wanted to go to Professor Simkovitch and ask him whether Sir Isaac had put in anything about soused mackerel, corned beef, or stewed prunes. But by that time the Morgan manuscripts had been locked up for the day.

It will not make [illegible] to call others goslers.

WILLIAM C. BROWN.

William C. Brown, mentioned as the probable successor of W. H. Newman, who yesterday resigned as president of the New York Central lines, is now senior vice president of the road. Mr. Brown is an old time railroad man and has held various positions in this branch of business for the last 40 years. He was born in Herkimer county, N. Y., in 1852. In 1890 he became general manager of the Hannibal and St. Joseph and Council Bluffs railways, and in 1896 was made general manager of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, holding that position until he accepted his present office as senior vice president and director of the New York Central lines.

$5,000 FOR PERPETUAL PRAYER

Albany Dispatch to the New York Herald.

While the world lasts and the Roman Catholic church is in existence a prayer will be said daily for the soul of the late Peter Cagger of Albany. Mr. Cagger left $5,000 to Bishop T. M. A. Burke, of the diocese of Albany, in consideration for which a prayer is to be said during mass at least once each day forever, for the repose of Peter Cagger's soul. The prayer is to be called the Elizabethan, in memory of his mother.

This donation, which is a case of another bequest for masses, was recently declared valid by the court of appeals, became public Friday in the surrogate court, when Judge Vandersee proved the final accounting of Mary C. Cagger, of the Sacred Heart convent, in Kenwood, executrix of the estate of her halfbrother.

The exciting thing to a girl about a secret engagement is having everybody know about it.

The New Year

Form and put in practice good resolutions for the new year. Consider the virtues of economy, thrift, prudence. Begin to regularly save a part of your income for future use for building a home, possibly. How this can be best accomplished is told in the printed matter of THE ASSURANCE SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION, 108 E. Kiowa street.

READS LIKE A STORY BUT IT IS TRUE

A short time ago we visited the GRAND VALLEY FRUIT DISTRICT.

We had heard reports of the immense profits ranging from $300 to $2,000 net per acre made in fruit raising.

WE DID NOT BELIEVE IT. Possibly you will not unless you follow our example and go and see for yourself.

THE REPORTS ARE ABSOLUTELY TRUE.

A net profit of $500 per acre is common.

$1,500 is not uncommon.

And while $2,000 is unusual, yet such profits have been made in many cases. Unimproved land can be purchased from $50.00 per acre up. Young orchards from $350.00 per acre up. Full bearing from $850.00 up as high as $4,000. There is plenty of cheap land to be had, and you can grow your own orchard. If you can't pay all cash, you can BUY ON TIME. In fact you can make any reasonable arrangements. Then, if you don't make money—AND WE MEAN BIG MONEY—it is your fault. We have agents on the ground. We have printed matter that explains everything.

Do you like housework?

You like housework, but you don't like to go out as an ordinary domestic—isn't that it?

Suppose you run over the list of domestic help wanted in The Gazette Classified Ads this morning. There are more of them than you imagine that are NOT THE ORDINARY kind.

Many a busy housewife and house-mother is looking for a "helper"—not just a domestic.

She wants some one like you—intelligent, reliable, well-bred, dependable—some one she can trust the children with, some one she can leave in charge in her absence and feel safe about it. That would suit you perfectly, wouldn't it? And put you way above the average domestic.

These women just naturally publish their wants in The Gazette; that's what the Classified Want Columns are for. Knowing, of course, that you will go there, just naturally, to look for them.

Try your luck this morning, and don't be discouraged if you have to keep on reading the Want Ads for a good many mornings. Remember you are not looking for an ordinary position, so it takes longer.

But the one you want is there—in THE GAZETTE Want Columns—we know because so many others have found just what they wanted there.
